COMMITTEE TO ORGANIZE

At the meeting of those interested in caring for the cemeteries at the Hogger funeral hall Tuesday night it was decided to call the committee of some twelve or fifteen together at Dr. T. B. Knopp's office, over the Hondo National Bank at 7:30 last (Thursday) night for the purpose of effecting plans for circulating a subscription list for the purpose of piping water from the city water plant to the cemeteries. We went to press as this committee was scheduled to be meeting.

Approximately $1,500.00 will be necessary to lay the pipe and construct a reservoir at Oakwood. This was regarded as the proper step to take first, as without water any kind of landscape beautification is difficult if not impossible. It is believed by the promoters of this plan that every one will be sufficiently interested to contribute within their means for this purpose. After water is made available and its advantages become apparent, other efforts at beautification and suitable upkeep will come easier.

Wouldn't it be a cause for community pride to see our cities of the dead transformed from a weed-grown chigger hatchery, to be shunned, to beautifully kept parks where the living would find solace in the beauty loving hands have made of the resting places of our departed?

THE SELECTIVE DRAFT

A mass of data relative to the registration of those subject to the draft law comes to this paper too late to make this issue.

Briefly, the 16th of October is set for the registration day when all men between the ages of 21 and 35 years, inclusive, must appear before the registration board in their election
precinct and register.

The officers of election appointed by the Commissioners Court constitute the registration board for the respective precincts.

Affected parties should take due notice and arrange their affairs accordingly.

The County Clerk is given general supervision over the county, and will furnish the necessary supplies. See him for further details.

More in this paper next week.

HONDO POST OFFICE SHOWS
BUSINESS INCREASE

According to Lawrence Brucks, local postmaster, the receipts of the Hondo Post Office for the first nine months of 1940 total $7,769.83. The amount for the same period in 1939
was $6,669.21, showing an increase for this year of $1,100.62. This is a substantial gain and reflects the general business condition in the Hondo territory.

Mr. Brucks says that if the local office continues to increase that Hondo will be in line for a Federal Post Office building. However, this is a matter to be taken up by some local civic organization as Government employees are prohibited from taking the initiative in any steps made to secure an appropriation for a building.

Owls Corral Cowboys

From THE OWL.

Friday night the Owls were again victorious when they defeated the Cotulla Cowboys by a score of 20-0.

The Owls were playing their best and had their passes down to where Clinton Hartung could grab them.

The boys also had perfect blocking when Joe Embrey intercepted a pass
and ran fifty-five yards for a touchdown. The line seemed to be a stone wall and would very seldom crack
when pounded upon.

As the game opened the Owls received and the ball was returned from the goal line to the twenty. On the first play Weynand went outside tackle for no gain, then Embrey
went through the center on a spinner
play for a gain of twenty-one yards and a first down. Finger then went outside left tackle for no gain.

Then Embrey went around left end for four yards. With third down and six yards for a first down, Weynand kicked to the Cotulla thirteen yard
line.

In three plays Cotulla made a first down, and on the next play they fumbled and the ball was covered by Hondo. On the next play, Weynand went through tackle for one yard, then Finger went outside left tackle for six yards. On the next play Embrey failed to make any yardage and Weynand kicked to the Cotulla one yard line. The Cowboys then kicked to the Owls. On the first play Embrey made four yards through the center. A pass was then complete from Embrey to Hartung for a gain of ten yards and a first down. Embrey then went inside tackle for no gain, and Finger went outside left tackle for four yards. On the next play Embrey failed to gain any yardage. A pass was then incomplete from Embrey to Weynand. The ball went to Cotulla on downs, and on the first play they fumbled and the ball was covered by Richter. Embrey then went around left end for eleven yards and a first down. Finger then went off tackle for the first score of the game. Clinton Hartung made the try for the extra point good.

Hartung then kicked off to Cotulla and the ball was returned to the twenty-one yard line. After two plays the Cowboys got a penalty, and with first down and fifteen yards for a first they punted. On the first play Embrey went off tackle, but there was a penalty against Cotulla and the Owls had a first down and five to go.
Embrey again went off tackle for eight yards and a first down. On the next play there was a fifteen yard penalty against Hondo which gave them first down and twenty-five.
Then Embrey went around right end for eight yards. This ended the first quarter.

On the first play in the second quarter Hartung caught a pass for a gain of seven yards. On the next play the Owls were penalized five yards for off side. A pass was then incomplete from Embrey to Hartung.
Weynand then punted out of bounds
on the Cotulla thirty-five.

In three plays Cotulla made a first down; then on the next play there was a penalty against the Cowboys,
and they quick kicked to the Hondo
fifteen. On the first play Embrey gained two yards around right end,
then Embrey failed to gain any yardage outside tackle. Weynand then punted to the Cotulla thirty-seven. In three plays the Cowboys failed to make a first down, and then they attempted a kick which was blocked by Richter. Hondo got the ball on the Cotulla fifteen yard line. In four consecutive line plays the Owls were unable to make a first down and the Cowboys took the ball on downs. The Cowboys then kicked and there was a penalty against Hondo. Cotulla attempted a line play and was stopped on the line of scrimmage. On the next play they punted to the Hondo
forty yard line. On the next play Finger gained five yards on an off tackle play; then Embrey went through center for no gain. A pass was then completed from Embrey to Hartung for a gain of ten yards.
Then Hartung caught a pass for a touchdown. Finger made the extra point.

Hartung kicked to the Cowboys. In the first play Embrey intercepted a pass; then Finger went outside left tackle for a gain of seventeen yards

Outstanding Game To Be Played

From THE OWL.

The Hondo Owls will meet the Carrizo Springs Wildcats in non-conference game next Friday night at Carrizo Springs. This promises to be one of the outstanding games of the season.

The Wildcats boast a strong line
and a fair backfield and this should turn out to be a real test for the Owls. The Wildcats have tied one game with Brackett and won one from Uvalde by a score of 12-0. In view of the fact that Carrizo Springs has scored only six points on any Hondo team in the last thirteen years, they will be out there fighting with all their power to change
that record.

The Owls are in fine shape for the game, having only a few bruises
from the Cotulla game. Here's wishing the team good luck in their first game away from home!

and a first down. Embrey then gained one yard through center. This ended the first half. Hondo Owls, 14; Cotulla Cowboys, 0.

When the second half started, Hartung kicked to Cotulla. In the plays the Cowboys were unable to make the first down. They then punted to the Hondo thirty yard line.
On the first play Finger went outside left tackle for three yards, then Weynand went outside right tackle for a five yard gain. Embrey went through the center for a twenty yard gain and a first down. Hartung then snared a pass from the arm of Embrey for a seven yard gain. Weynand
then went outside tackle for no gain.
On the next play Cotulla
intercepted a pass, and on the first play they punted to the Hondo thirty and Embrey returned the ball ten yards to the forty. On the first play Embrey went around left end for a nine yard gain. Weynand then went outside tackle for a two yard gain and a first down. A pass was then completed from Embrey to Hartung but there was a penalty against Hondo for holding which gave the Owls first and twenty-five for a first down. A pass was then intercepted by Cotulla. On their first play Embrey intercepted a pass and ran fifty yards for pay dirt. There was perfect blocking all the way and there were very few Cowboys standing up when Embrey crossed the goal line. Hartung tried for conversion
but it was no good.

Hartung then kicked to the Cotulla Cowboys. On the first three plays the Cowboys made a first but were forced to punt on the next fourth down. This ended the third quarter.

On the first play Weynand went outside tackle but Cotulla recovered
the ball on a fumble. In three plays they made a first down, but on the next three plays they were unable to make a first and punted to Hondo.
On the first play Finger went outside left tackle for a gain of eight yards. On the next play there was a penalty against Cotulla for off side which gave the Owls a first down. On the following play Weynand went through tackle and lateralled to Embrey for a four yard gain. Then Finger went around tackle for five yards. Embrey then went through the center for one yard and a first down. A pass was then incomplete from Embrey to Hartung. Then Embrey went inside tackle for three yards. A pass was then incomplete from Embrey to Weynand; there was a penalty on the play against Hondo
for holding which gave them fourth down and twenty for a first. Weynand then punted to the Cotulla forty yard line. In two plays the Cowboys were unable to make a first down. They then quick kicked to the Hondo three yard line. Weynand then punted to the Hondo forty yard
line.

In four consecutive passes the Cowboys were unable to make a first down and the Owls took the ball on downs. On the first play Embrey went through left tackle for four yards. On the next play both sides were off side and the play was brought back. Finger then went outside left tackle for a twenty-five yard gain. Embrey went around

FIRST POLES FOR REA LINES ARRIVE.

On Saturday of last week, the first carload of poles for the construction of the B Project lines for the Medina Electric Cooperative, Inc., was received in Hondo. Some poles have also been received for the contractor in the towns of Devine, Natalia, and Moore.

Pole setting has been going on ever since last Tuesday, and already there are a large number of poles dotting the skylines. The load of poles received in Hondo has already been hauled out and spotted on the route of the line, and framing and setting is going along very nicely.

Trucks are busy in the towns mentioned above, hauling and spotting
poles in that territory.

Mr. Workman is receiving more and more hardware material almost daily, and there should be no delay
in construction due to lack of proper equipment. So far, procedures have been going along very smoothly.

The staking crew is planning on being able to finish the surveying of the route of the line within a week's time, and the right-of-way clearing crew is following right behind the staking crew; that means that in about a day after the staking is finished that the clearing will also be complete.

House-wiring contractors have been fairly busy this past week and have turned in quite a number of houses as ready for inspection by Mr. Hendricks when he returns to Hondo the first of next week. But these men must work faster and harder if they intend to get all members' houses wired by the time the lines will be ready for energization.

The Cooperative urges its B Project
members to let the contractors wire
their houses at the first opportunity,
and not ask them to wait a week or two—by that time they may have other jobs, and your houses will be left until last, thereby delaying construction of your particular tap. No services can be hung unless the houses are wired ready to receive the electric current when it is made available.

On Tuesday of this week, the Cooperative office had a short visit from Mr. Irving C. Honegger, of the Aluminum Company of America. Mr.
Honegger was on his way to other points, and stopped in just long enough to say "hello".

The conductor being used on the B Project lines is aluminum and is being furnished to the contractor by the company which Mr. Honegger represents.

TAX PAYING SEASON OPENS

The season for paying state and county taxes opened Tuesday, October 1st, and those who pay during the month of October are allowed a discount on certain items. This should mean a rush to pay on the part of those with ready cash to do so.

Whether or not this was the motivating cause in his case we are not informed, but Mr. H. G. Wilson of near Yancey—a taxpayer who has paid so long that he is now exempt
from paying a poll-tax—has the distinction of receiving property tax receipt No. 1 Tuesday. Hugo Reitzer and Henry E. Graff came in together and were issued poll-tax receipts
Nos. 1 and 2 respectively.

A TRAGIC TALE

By Clayton Rand

A lonely county superintendent of "illiteracy" in Mississippi
once advertised for a mate in a matrimonial journal.

When he went to the flagstop
station to meet her she was so homely he fled the scene. When apprehended he refused to go through with his contract. She sued him, recovered, and he became a man wrecked in fortune
and influence.

The tragedy of this episode was that he had made the fatal mistake of outlining all too briefly
his specifications in his original advertisement.

Many a merchant comes to advertising grief because he is too stingy in the use of space and careless in the use of words.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The opinions here expressed are Mr. Preston's own and not necessarily those of this paper.—M. E.

"If we're going to conscript men, we've got to conscript industry and wealth too."

That theme song still is being sung in some Washington quarters. It has a nice, vote-getting ring. This being election year, it will be sung over and over with varying emphasis.

As this correspondent has reported, a majority of legislators now appears convinced that such a vote-baiting catch line lacks logic. Though these don't talk much about it, they vote against the plans of the theme song singers.

Their fear, however, is that the minority will continue to sing until a majority of the public joins in. So the majority is scanning the arguments and statements of the vociferous minority.

For example, Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma is the leading proponent of a plan to tax "wealth". Lee's opponents say he doubtless has neglected to report to Oklahoma's farmers that they, too, would be forced to buy government bonds under his plan even if they had to borrow the money from the government. "Wealth" is defined by Webster as "all property which has a money value."

Lee in advocating his plan before the Senate Finance committee said: "Many of us would like to see the day come when we would stop exempting capital from taxation."

His opponents remind of a major thesis which runs through Karl Marx's "Das Kapital", the handbook of the ismites. Marx thinks "capital" is bad. His theory is that all property should belong to the government. He recognizes, however, that it is difficult under any private ownership form of government to transfer all property to the government at one swoop.

So Marx suggests a gradual approach to his system by taxing wealth. The taxes then can be boosted higher and higher until they amount to confiscation by government.

That is the Marxian way. Opponents in Washington cite many things which could happen under Lee's plan. One is striking:

Henry Ford has many millions invested in his business. Suppose it amount to just one billion dollars. The Lee plan would require him to buy roughly three-quarters of a billion dollars worth of government bonds—in effect, give that much money to the government in return for paper.

Which could do the most good for national defense with that money ask these? The government or Ford? —WSS—

An American who went to Halifax with some of the 50 destroyers reports a couple of very interesting facts.

The destroyers, he says, had been completely reconditioned and were not just old ones brushed up and put into service. He adds that Winston Churchill's "long arm of coincidence" put 800 British sailors in

CABBAGE AND KRAUT

By Nell F. Foley

County Home Demonstration Agent
"The time has come to talk of cabbages and kings," said the Walrus in the story of Alice in Wonderland. But right now, it's a lot more practical to talk of cabbages and kraut. For there is a good crop of late cabbage this year, and that means a good share of it will be used for sauerkraut. Many Medina County farm women will be making sauerkraut for home use during the coming winter. In fact, there are many who claim that there is nothing better than homemade sauerkraut with fresh pork.

Yet there are homemakers who prepare sauerkraut year after year, without really understanding what happens to the cabbage when it becomes kraut. Chemists in the United States Department of Agriculture explain that the salt, which is mixed with the shredded cabbage, draws out the juice which contains sugar. Then the bacteria ferment the sugar and form lactic acid; and the kraut takes on its distinctive flavor and texture.

When sauerkraut is not made correctly, there is a chance that other types of bacteria will also grow and cause the kraut to spoil. So sauerkraut making is a process of helping one kind of bacteria to grow and preventing other kinds from developing.

It was once the custom to keep the sauerkraut in a crock or barrel in the cellar. But the modern way is to use glass jars that hold just enough kraut for a single meal, explains Harry E. Gorseline, bacteriologist in the Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering. If you have the sauerkraut in glass jars, there is no need to waste the top layer that turns soft and brown in an open crock or barrel.

Jars with glass lids, that clamp down, are preferred. The salt in sauerkraut will corrode metal lids.

If there is a cool storage place and the sauerkraut is to be used during the winter, you can make the kraut right in the jars. Mix the shredded cabbage with the salt—4 ounces of salt to 10 pounds of cabbage—and pack it into the jars. Place the rubbers and lids on the jars, but do not seal tightly. Have an enamel pan under the jars to catch the juice that bubbles out. Let the kraut stand for two or three days until there is good gas formation. Then pour the juice back, and seal the jars. Allow the kraut to ripen for a month or six weeks, and then it is ready to serve.

When sauerkraut is to be kept until summer, it's best to make it in a crock or barrel and later put it in jars. Let the kraut ferment for about 10 days and it will be ready for canning. Have the sauerkraut thoroughly hot, and then fork it into the jars. Put the rubbers and lids on the jars, but do not seal. Place the jars in a bath of boiling water and continue heating for about 5 minutes, until the water returns to boiling. Then seal the jars and continue heating them in the water bath—10 minutes for quart jars, and 15 minutes for two-quart jars.

"RANGE WAR"—Friday and Saturday, Western film with a cast composed of William Boyd, Russell Hayden, Britt Wood, Pedro de Cordoba, Willard Robertson, Matt Moore and Betty Moran. Ranchers, constructing a railroad trunk line for the shipment of their cattle when an unscrupulous land-holder raises the toll for use of his thoroughfare, are mysteriously hindered in their efforts. Hopalong Cassidy plunges into action and sets things aright.

"BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN"—Sunday and Monday, a delightful concoction of streamlined yippee showing Jack Benny and his radio playmates—Rochester, Phil Harris, Andy Devine, Dennis Day and even Carmichael, the polar bear—go western and packs more laughs than lassos and more swing than six-guns. The cast also includes Ellen Drew, Virginia Dale and Lillian Cornell.

"THE SEA HAWK"—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, melodrama, the spectacle and sweep of England in the days of Queen Elizabeth and the Spanish Armada, and one man who swept caution to the winds. Errol Flynn in the title role has a swashbuckling assignment. The remainder of the cast is Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Flora Robson, Alan Hale and Henry Daniell.

Halifax before the destroyers arrived.

Furthermore, he says, despite pictures showing towering smoke above British oil tanks, the English oil situation is so favorable that freight rates on oil from the Western hemisphere have been quietly raised by British-owned shipping companies. —WSS—

SIGNALS OVER! The CIO owns a six story building in Washington, once occupied by the University Club. Across the street a new government-leased building is being completed. Original plans were to put the Labor Board in the new building. Whether the AFL protested, or whatever the cause, the Labor Board and CIO which are close together in their aims will not be so close together physically. For the RFC is to move into the new building instead of the Labor Board.

To keep pace with the increasing interest in Holstein-Friesian cattle in the Southwest, The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has named the Texas State Fair as an official Regional Show, giving it a recognition parallel to that of the Dairy Cattle Congress, Waterloo, Iowa, the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Ore., and the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass. This group is surpassed among dairy cattle shows only by the National Dairy Show. These designated Regional Shows are focal points of interest in the showing of Holstein-Friesian cattle, and special effort is made to insure an exhibit that will be a credit to the fair, the breed and the dairy industry in general. The states designated for this Regional Show are Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona.

Meeting Mrs. Muter at Del Rio who was Mary Tevebaugh, made me recollect her father, H. C. Tevebaugh, who moved here from Sabinal many years ago. He told me about the fight they had in Medina County to move the county seat from Castroville to Hondo. He was then living at Hondo. He said that the courthouse records were stolen from the courthouse at Castroville and transferred to the proposed new courthouse at Hondo and that he led the march into Hondo with the records. Lots of interesting chapters are connected with the moving of county seats in Texas. Even in the early days of Edwards County there were some interesting events in which Barksdale, Vance and Leakey took part. Also the moving of the county seat from Hidalgo to Edinburg in Hidalgo County when Yancey Baker, who by the way was a former Uvalde boy, moved the records and county equipment from Hidalgo to Edinburg by truck and established the county seat at Edinburg.—H. P. H. in Going Around.

GREAT EUROPEAN ANIMAL ACTS IN CIRCUS DISPLAY

Ringling-Barnum Show Thrills Nation With Latest Features

With the most sensational mixed groups of performing wild animals ever seen in America—those of Europe's foremost trainer, Alfred Court—the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will exhibit in San Antonio, Friday, October 4, its performance further notable by its new and fine array of other super-features from the Continent and countless innovations in presentation.

Racing with Alfred Court for peak honors in this thrilling European invasion is the new opening spectacle, "The Return of Marco Polo", fashioned and costumed in Paris by Max Weldy, designer of the Folies Bergere productions, at a cost of over $80,000. This is the last word in pageantry, its color tones, gorgeously fantastic garb and rich trappings are like nothing ever seen in America before.

The newly-imported horse acts for the Big Show—sixty-four marvelously-trained equines—brings Europe's most famous horsemen to the world's largest big top, now a solid blue canvas, with its air conditioning perfected by a season's experimentation.

Scores of European headline troupes and stars, headed by the unparalleled Les Bretinis, Elly Ardilly, Truzzi, the Akimotos, Eola-Rella, Adriana and Charlys and Tanita Ikona, perform aloft and in the rings with such favorites as the Riding Critianis, the three Flying Concello troupes, Hubert Castle, wizard of the tight wire; the marvelous Yacopis and the Davisos.

The performances begin at 2:15 and 8:15 P. M., with doors open at 1 and 7 P. M., to permit public inspection of the menagerie, including Gargantua the Great, giant gorilla, and the hundreds of blue-blooded steeds in the new horse fair tent adjoining it.

HARVEST MONTHS BEST TIME FOR DEBT ADJUSTMENT.

Harvest months when they have a little money is the time for farmers who are struggling along under burden of excessive debts to get these obligations brought within their ability to pay, said Jack R. Welhausen, FSA supervisor, in announcing the next meeting of the county farm debt adjustment committee.

The meeting will be held on Monday, October 7, Farm Security Administration office in Hondo, beginning at 2:00 P. M.

Debt-distressed farmers of Medina county may appear before this meeting for a discussion of ways to help them.

Mr. Welhausen stated that the debt adjustment committee has found many creditors willing to grant time extensions, re-amortizations, and sometimes adjustments in principal and interest to farmers who showed a sincere willingness to pay as much as they can on their indebtedness.

"In almost every case," he said, "it is to the creditors advantage to permit the debtor-farmer to remain on his farm so that eventually he can pay a large part of his obligations."

The farm debt adjustment committee, composed of local men, seeks to work out a fair agreement between debt-burdened farmer and his creditors, providing for a repayment schedule which the farmer can meet.

The Farm Security Administration in many cases will then extend its loan and guidance service to help the farmers make as large an income as possible.

Members of the Medina county debt adjustment committee are: Vernon P. King, James Amberson, and George T. Briscoe.

QUIHI NOTES

And they journeyed; and the horror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob. Gen. 35:5.

Murder will out. The furies of guilt whip the conscience to a frazzle. The murdered takes to his heels, dodging, hiding, seeing the horrors of the dead, suspecting the avengers of the law are not caught napping; they will get their quarry, dead or alive. Even where the law has left a loophole made by bribery and technicalities and perjury, the murderer is not free of guilt and fear. Piercing eyes, startling voices, ghastly fingers pointing at him heavy nightmares and clutching dreams work on his mind, often tear him to pieces, inch by inch. Life is man's most precious and most inalienable possession. And God will not let him go unpunished who sheds his neighbor's blood, and He has various ways in going about it, even before the final account.

The sons of Jacob were traveling with this bloody burden, under this tormenting scourge. They had meted out cruel revenge for the raping of their sister Dinah. According to mob-law it seemed justifiable murder. Their conscience, their father and the laws of the land put them in the wrong. Their "journeying," most likely a hasty flight, gave fair proof of their helplessness of getting public opinion on their side in sheltering and excusing their foul deed. The cities round about were roused to a frenzy of wrath. To lay hands on the culprits and bring them to quick justice, was their passionate desire. We can imagine the tragic outcome for Jacob and his household under the onslaught of such massive and enraged force.

Again the Lord interferred. "The horror of God was upon the cities" round about. He blocked their move. He undermined their courage. Horror and fear of greater bloodshed disturbed and thwarted the vindictors and the feasting crowds at the very start. Neither attack nor pursuit, they dared. Did the Lord condone and defend the murder of these sons of Jacob? Did He consent to the punishment of these ravishers of their Israelite victim? Did He foretell the extermination of Jacob? He chosen, the man loaded down with heavenly promises, innocent in the affair, and for his sake rescued the guilty? Was it a matter of policy, in order to frustrate future attempts on the little chosen band by the surrounding tribes who considered them as intruders? A valid reason He had.

How did God effect that horror upon these cities? It's a thing beyond our ken. It's often simply there. Depressing like the low-hanging funnel of a cyclone; falling over night like a mildew on vegetation, like an early frost killing the beauty of a bright flower-world. Sometimes like the swish of gurgling waters, then like the roar of waters breaking the dam, often like the thunderous impact of angry waves crushing the shore in fragments. It's not always horror. Maybe just a phase of general pessimism, or of murky doubt, or of cold indifference towards things high and noble, or of vitriolic cynicism when long cherished ideals and principles are smashed to pieces by ruthless hands. Time and again it's a period of rumbling dissatisfaction distrust against powers and coteries; with public policies, of unconcealed fanatic suspicion and discrimination and venomous hatred, whipping the ugly dregs of unbridled passions to the surface. In between we find the cycles and circuits of general mockery, frivolity, make-belief and hypocrisy that make the surrounding world a trifling and trivial puppet-show for mental imbeciles. Today we are living under the sickening spell of many of these phases combined. Fear and horror are not lacking by any means.

Is it all man-made? Just the aggregate, the sum total of many past errors and faults? Is the Lord speaking in the thunder of distant Sinai, echoing His will and demand and threat? What influence has His voice upon the world of today? He will not be silenced by force and counter-force.

Also here we have our vacationists, and some venture far away. Dr. and Mrs. Albert Reus went as far as St. Louis and report a pleasurable trip.

Mrs. Clarence Dailey required medical attention for a badly infected hand. Also Miss Corine Nietten hoefter again was an inmate of the hospital for a brief time. Things have taken a turn for the better with both.

And at the hospital we saluted Mrs. Clarence Saathoff and the latest arrival in her family, a lively baby boy. All was well and happy.

Thanks to Mr. Arnold Reitzer for the barbecue for our visitors. Some had never tasted any before. They appreciated the thoughtful arrangement to be included in the budget of their happy memories of their stay.

Word has been received by relatives here of the safe arrival Wednesday, October 2, 1940, of a baby daughter, 6 1-2 pounds, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schultze of San Antonio in the Nix Hospital. He made the trip north by train and returned in his new Chevrolet which he purchased from the Bob Kollman Chevrolet Company of Hondo.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington of September 29, carries the information that the Civil Aeronautics Administration has submitted to Congress a proposed airport development program calling for an appropriation of $38,461,837 for the establishment of approximately 300 aviation fields in Texas. Among those 300 Hondo is recommended for a $24,500 expenditure. This is to be Texas' share in a 4,000 national airport program which, if carried out, may extend over a period of some three years. Here is something to come alive to; for so sure as we are not bombed out of existence in the threatened war, air transportation is to be the chief mode of travel in the not distant future.

CANDELARIO U. BARRIENTES DEAD

Candelario U. Barrientes died at the Medina Hospital at 11:30 o'clock Monday night, September 30, 1940. He was buried in the family plot in the Mexican addition to Oakwood Cemetery at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, following a funeral service at the church of Our Lady of Sorrows conducted by his pastor Rev. C. Garcia.

Deceased had been in poor health for about a year. His condition grew so serious that he was taken to the hospital for an operation, but internal hemorrhage from diseased vital organs had already set in and his condition was beyond the power of surgery to relieve. He sank rapidly and soon passed away.

He was 45 years and 8 months of age at the time of his demise. He was one of several sons of the late L. Barrientes and wife and grew up from boyhood in Hondo. He took a commendable pride in his American citizenship, was President of the local League of United Latin American Citizens, a member of the Latin American Camp of Woodmen of the World and a man of considerable influence among his people and, with the lights before him, used to the best of his ability and understanding that influence for the uplift of his race.

His father came to Hondo many years ago and established a small food store. His business prospered over a period of years and he accumulated considerable property. His family grew up and he had associated himself in business with his three eldest sons and they had a thriving business housed in their own brick building. Then in an evil moment, he and two of his sons were murdered in their place of business. Candelario escaped a like fate by being for the time absent and the murderer failed to find him. For the past ten or twelve years, following the death of his father and brothers, he has tried valiantly to carry on the business his father had built, but handicapped by their loss and the general depression he has found it hard sledding. Hard work and worry probably had a large part in undermining his constitution and hastened his premature death.

His people lose an able leader and his family will miss him sadly. He is survived by his widow, three young sons, an aged mother, a younger brother and other relatives.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington of September 29, carries the information that the Civil Aeronautics Administration has submitted to Congress a proposed airport development program calling for an appropriation of $38,461,837 for the establishment of approximately 300 aviation fields in Texas. Among those 300 Hondo is recommended for a $24,500 expenditure. This is to be Texas' share in a 4,000 national airport program which, if carried out, may extend over a period of some three years. Here is something to come alive to; for so sure as we are not bombed out of existence in the threatened war, air transportation is to be the chief mode of travel in the not distant future.

Word has been received by relatives here of the safe arrival Wednesday, October 2, 1940, of a baby daughter, 6 1-2 pounds, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schultze of San Antonio in the Nix Hospital. Mrs. Schultze will be remembered as Miss Clara Filleman of Hondo. Their young son, Dickie, is here visiting his aunt, Mrs. Ed Ney.

Miss Thelma Lynch entertained her bridge club on Wednesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. O. B. Taylor won high score, Mrs. Ed Cameron won second and Mrs. R. J. Noonan won the guest prize. Refreshments of hot gingerbread and coffee were served to the following: Mesdames A. L. Janszen, J. M. Finger, Volney Boon, R. W. Speece, Ed Cameron, O. B. Taylor and R. J. Noonan.

Postmaster R. Lawrence Brucks returned last week-end from a two weeks' vacation which took him to New York City, Connecticut, and the Central States. MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Norma Schroeder, a bride of the month, at the home of Geo. H. Wiemers, Tuesday, October 1st, from 2 to 5 P. M.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white crepe paper, also bouquets of roses, queen's crown and verbenas.

While "You're the Only Star in My Blue Heaven" was played on the guitar and sung by Miss Erna Schroeder, the honoree, attractively gowned in teal-blue, entered the room, preceded by her niece, the little Miss Elva Jean Dornbusch, dressed in pink, led the bride-to-be to her place of honor. After Miss Schroeder and little Miss Dornbusch were seated, the following toast was composed and read by Miss Minnie Wiemers:

"TO NORMA"
Friends and family are gathered from far and near,
To honor Norma who to us is dear,
To show our love as we bring a shower of wishes true, and Wagon loads of gifts for you.
We wish for you, dear, both happiness and health,
This you know is far better than wealth.

How great it will be to own a real man,
To do everything for you that he can.
Now unto him who shall stand by you Just be faithful, fond, and true.
Think not that romance is ended,
That youth's curtain has descended,
And love's pretty play is done;
For it's only just begun.
Marriage, little lady,
Is love's sunny path and shady,
Over which two hearts should wander,
Of each other growing fonder.
As you stroll to each tomorrow,
You will come to joy and sorrow,
And as faithful man and wife
Read the troubled book of life,
Bitter cares will some day find you;
Closer, closer they will bind you;
If together you will bear them,
Cares grow sweet when lovers share them.

Now, just remember
Every year has its December,
Every rising sun its setting
Every life its time of fretting.
But keep faith, when trouble-tried,
And in joy you shall abide,
Never let your courage falter,
Never stoop to unbelieving,
Even when your heart is grieving,
Through what comes of wintry weather
Or disaster, stand together;
Through life's fearful hours of night
Love shall bring you to the light.

The little Miss Dornbusch presented the honoree with wagon-loads of gifts which were opened and passed to the guests for inspection and admiration. The bride-to-be in her own sweet way thanked her friends for the pretty and useful gifts.

Mrs. T. J. Dickson had charge of the beautiful hand-painted bride's book.

The color scheme of pink and white was also carried out in the refreshments which consisted of brick ice cream and cherry cake, which were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Edwin J. Wiemers, Mrs. H. B. Clemens, Mrs. T. J. Dickson and Miss Minnie Wiemers.

About forty-five guests registered in the bride's book.

DOG POINTERS

"When housebreaking a puppy, it is advisable to keep him on the kitchen linoleum as much as possible until he learns what is expected of him," says A. H. Leonard, head of the Dog Department of Purina Mills. "Open newspapers—perhaps over an entire floor the first few days—should be provided. Gradually the amount of space covered by newspapers can be reduced until the puppy has only a single newspaper pad in one corner," Leonard says. "After the puppy learns to use the paper, both puppy and paper may be placed outdoors after each meal, the last thing at night, and first thing in the morning. When the puppy has learned to make use of the paper both indoors and outdoors the job of housebreaking is complete."

Unsaturated oils rich in Vitamin F should be included in dog food since they help prevent the itchy nutritional eczema from which so many dogs suffer. Infections and mites may bring on certain types of eczema but the nutritional kind of eczema is caused by improper feeding and can be prevented by feeding a complete, balanced feed such as Purina Dog Chow, which includes special additional oils rich in Vitamin F.

All puppies should be wormed between the time they are two months and one year old, according to Purina dog specialists. Large round-worms are very common, and most dogs, particularly puppies, pick them up. Worms cause loss of weight, run-down condition, rough hair, and erratic appetites. In severe cases of worms dogs are often subject to fits. A veterinarian may be called upon to do the worming, or it may be done at home by using a 3 m.m. size testule, obtainable from any Purina feed dealer. These testules work rapidly and efficiently and when administered according to directions on the box will efficiently rid the puppy of worms.

"Fleas and dogs were never meant to live together," says A. H. Leonard, head of the Dog Department of Purina Mills. "Only the carelessness of man has made them co-habit. Fleas are easily eliminated when dog owners realize that they multiply from eggs dropped in the kennel, in a bed of weeds, or in dust where dogs often pass. Sources of infestation should be eliminated as much as possible by disinfecting with Purina Cresofec, a powerful cresol disinfectant which prevents eggs from hatching. If the dog is already infested, a thorough dusting with Purina Insect Powder is recommended. Dogs subject to fleas should be thoroughly sprinkled at least once a week."

A proper ration not only nourishes a puppy but also supplies an abundance of vitamins which are so important for best condition and resistance to disease. Purina Dog Chow is made of animal proteins extracted from meat and milk, prepared cereals, cod liver oil and other vitamin foods, and fortified with Puratene, a rich Vitamin A concentrate. This complete feed in checker form keeps dogs in peak of condition, keeps hair healthy and growing, and assures husky, robust growth in puppies. An abundance of Vitamin A helps build resistance to disease and infection.

H. P. Owens, famous dog trainer of St. Louis, Missouri, says that a good dog's greatest desire is to please his master. "And, as the owner teaches his dog manners and tricks, he increases the dog's pleasure in living and gives him greater opportunity to serve and be with the owner. Cruelty has no part in training. The most obedient dogs are taught through love for their masters and bits of reward like Dog Chow Checkers. Training consists of establishing a comradeship between master and dog. The things dogs can learn are practically unlimited if the master has patience and skill in teaching."

A puppy's natural instinct is to chew... first, because of his puppy love for play and second, to relieve the pain of teething. Dog specialists at Purina Mills say that puppies can be taught that chewing is destructive and harmful and results in pain and scolding. Every time he is caught tearing up a newspaper or chewing on a table leg, the master should speak to him in a gruff voice, telling him he is a "bad dog." If this doesn't work, a newspaper may be rolled up and the puppy slapped lightly, and at the same time reprimanded. Discipline cannot be established by laughing at the puppy one time and scolding him the next. Be consistent. He must understand every time he is wrong.

A mistaken idea is that clipping a dog keeps him cool. Dogs should never be clipped, particularly in summer. Removal of the dog's coat does not make him cooler, since a dog does not sweat through his skin but through its lolling tongue. Clipping the hair, therefore, does not allow for any more evaporation. On the other hand a dog's coat protects his skin against the sun and acts as an insulator to help keep the heat out. Frequent bathing in hot weather, is also inadvisable.

ONE HOUR

By Annie L. Towler

So little she had to remember—One kiss at their parting of ways;

His arms as they danced, warm and tender, She'd remember the rest of her days.

So little, but a love so tormenting—It burned with an unquenchable flame;

Her poor heart was seared with its longing For one hour she could never regain.

THE REASON

By Annie L. Towler

Sue smelled frying cabbage as soon as her foot struck the first flight of stairs going up. Cabbage again. They had had it last night too. She couldn't bear it. Her poor feet were aching from her long hours in the "Five and Ten". Up, up, three flights more, radios shrieking—babies crying— Sue climbed on fairly shuddering. How long had it been since her dad had had a day's work? She had lost all count of the time, her poor straggly-haired mother striving to keep the family supplied with food from the small wages Sue earned.

"Did you have to cook cabbage again, Ma?" She didn't wait for an answer but went on into the small bedroom to remove her coat. Putting on an apron she was soon busy helping her mother set the table.

"Where's Mig, Ma?" "She hasn't come in yet."

"Her cough any better?" "No."

"She ought to have nourishing food, Ma."

"I know, Sue, but where is it coming from?" "And fresh air, how can she get it in this place?"

"Oh, Ma, I can't bear it. I've changed my mind, Ma, I'm going to marry Dale Craig after all."

"Sue! You don't love him and you do love Jerry."

"Beggars can't be choosers, Ma. Look what it would do for all of us. You and Dad and Mig."

"And you, Sue, don't forget that."

"I'm not likely to forget it. I don't want any supper, Ma. I'm going out with Jerry. And I'm going to tell him."

Sue removed her apron, put her arms around her mother's thin shoulders. "Don't worry, Ma, all this (she waved her hand, taking in all the poverty-stricken tenement apartment in which they lived) will soon come to an end."

"Don't do anything rash, Sue. Stop and think."

"Think! That's all I've done for weeks, Ma, is think. Now I'm going to act. Good-by, Ma; I won't be late."

"Sue, you can't mean it, you can't mean it." The tall young man sitting by her side on the park bench sprang to his feet. He stood before her, his blue eyes blazing down into her brown ones.

"Yes, but I do mean it. I'm going to marry Dale Craig just as soon as he will have me. Can't you see, Jerry? I've got to do it. There's nothing left, you'll forget me, Jerry, and marry someone more worthy who hasn't a family tied around her neck. Dad is old, he can't hold a job any more. Ma is worn out, and Mig, poor little sister, is dying for fresh air and the right kind of nourishing food and medicine. It's not fair to you, Jerry. It would be months, maybe years before we could be married. No, Jerry. My mind is made up. Dale Craig means a home, maybe out in the country where Mig can get well, and for all my folks; means the end of poverty for us all. It's true, Oh, Jerry, don't hate me; can't you see how it is, Jerry? I've got to do it. Day after day I have to watch my mother failing, my Dad lose all hope of finding a way to provide for his family, Mig the apple of their old eyes dying for a little care. Jerry, darling, forgive me."

"Sue, you'll regret this," said Jerry fiercely. "Listen to me, Sue. I love you, you love me. It's for all our life, Sue; your's and mine. Please, darling, don't throw it all away. I'll work. I will help them."

"No, Jerry, I won't ruin your chances that way; I won't hang my family around your neck. Mr. Craig had asked me for an early answer. He really wants to marry, poverty-stricken me, family and all."

"And so you will sell yourself. I'm glad I found you out, Sue. Carol. And I wish you a long and happy life with your choice." Jerry Farmer laughed bitterly, grabbed Sue, crushed her in his arms, and almost threw her from him.

"Why, what in the world!" Sue

Carroll stopped dead in her tracks. A crowd was gathered in front of the rusty old tenement house she called home.

"Has something happened?" she cried, now rushing forward again.

"Nettie, tell me." She grabbed a lank, stringy-haired girl by her shoulders. "What is the matter?"

"Your Dad," said the excited girl.

Sue waited to hear no more but bounded up the stairs as fast as her trembling legs could carry her, pushing by those that would have stopped her. In the little kitchen was another crowd. But there sat her father, in his accustomed place, a dazed look on his face. Her mother stood near by wiping her eyes. Sue took it in. Then she grabbed her mother.

"Mother, what's all this hubbub? Are you all right? Where's Mig?"

"Sue, Sue, the most wonderful thing has happened to us. Your father, your father, Sue. Ask him."

"Sue," said her father in a trembling voice. "Here read this." He handed her a paper. "But this is only the local paper," said Sue.

"Read it, read it here." And she read the item where the shaky finger pointed. "We are glad to be able to congratulate Mr. Pat Carroll on being informed that he holds the lucky number as one of the big winners in the Irish Sweepstakes."

"Dad," said Sue.

"It's true, Sue. I was just lucky for once in my life. You see I bought another feller out for $2.50. Two dollars and a half, the last bit of cash I had. Where you goin', Sue?" For Sue hugged her mother and her father and tore down the stairs, her mother crying after her, "Sue, here is Mr. Craig. He has been waiting for you for over an hour." But Sue was out of hearing.

"Jerry, Jerry, forgive me." The panting girl had reached Jerry and grabbed his arm. Just as he was about to enter a bus, to carry him he didn't care where.

"Do you mean it, Sue?"

"Yes, yes, Oh Jerry. Thank God, we can both work."

Sue couldn't say any more. There was a reason.

McNARY OFFERS SOUND PROGRESSIVE IDEAS

Senator Charles L. McNary, the Republican nominee for Vice President, demonstrated in his Acceptance Speech that he remains a symbol of the pioneering West, believing in progressive but sound ideas of government.

The Oregonian gave the New Deal credit for trying—but, as he pointed out so forcefully, it has failed to achieve its objectives because of a lack of capacity to govern and because of its "political and economic heresies which have deflected us from our course."

Speaking of the farm problem, Senator McNary asserted that "the prosperity of agriculture should be the first charge on the attention of any administration." Those who have followed his career as a battler for the farmer during the last 23 years in the Senate know that Charles McNary speaks with sincerity on that subject.

"The New Deal has administered the farm problem for more than seven years," Senator McNary asserted. "What is the present state of the American farmer, who, with his dependents, makes up a quarter of our population? In the year 1933 his share of the national income was the lowest since statistics have been kept."

Senator McNary strongly advocates preserving the American market for the American farmer, believing it is "far and away the greatest market" and the "only one we can hope to control."

The Northwestern National Life Insurance Company finds that families with a monthly income of $80 pay an average of $116.04 a year in indirect or so-called hidden taxes. This is about 12 per cent of the average income. Who said only the big fellows pay taxes?

WENDELL WILLKIE MAN OF ACTION

Republican Candidate for President, Like Thomas Jefferson, Has Wide Interests.

In the two and one-half months since his unprecedented and spectacular nomination for the Presidency, by the Republican National Convention, Wendell Willkie has demonstrated to the country his dynamic personality and driving energy as well as his quick and clear mind.

Few men have ever been nominated for the Presidency who have as wide and universal an interest in many fields of endeavor as Wendell Willkie. In that respect he has been compared to Thomas Jefferson who was as well versed in architecture as he was in the law—knew as much about farming as he did about political philosophy.

Born 48 years ago in the small town of Elwood, Indiana, Wendell Willkie was educated for the law. But before he received his degree in that profession, he taught history in the high school at Coffeyville, Kansas; drove a bakery wagon; worked as a baker for a tent hotel in Aberdeen, South Dakota, as a field hand in harvesting wheat in Oklahoma and as a laborer in California. He has labored in steel mills and sugar fields.

Once embarked on the practice of law, Wendell Willkie defended labor unions with his father; enlisted in the army the day this country declared war on Germany in 1917; became a lawyer for a rubber company; and finally went to New York, first as counsel for Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and then, when the sick company needed resuscitation, as its president. Even critical New Dealers always have paid tribute to Willkie's candor, honesty and ability.

Nurtured in a home filled with books, Wendell Willkie throughout his life has been a constant reader of books—all kinds of books. He reads rapidly and, with a photographic-like mind, retains what he has read. He demonstrated his rich background of information on the "Information Please" programs on the air and in motion pictures. He is a qualified authority on English

Constitutional history and writes much better than many professional writers. Had he not been a great lawyer, he would have been an outstanding newspaperman.

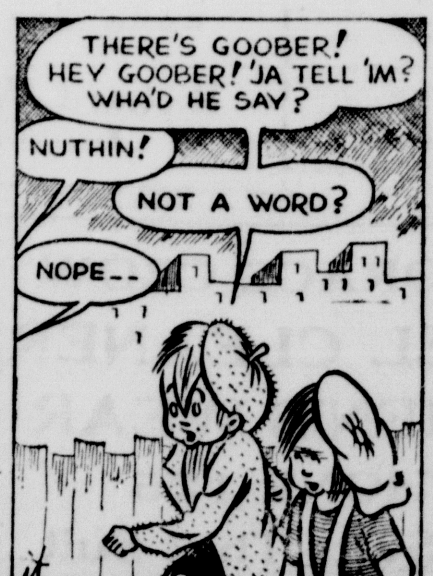

Though Willkie has sat among the great and learned, he has never lost his touch with his Indiana origin. Though he likes books, he likes people more. He is as much at home in conversation with a truck driver or farm laborer as he is with an industrial tycoon or college President. Typical of the man is the fact that his faith in American agriculture is so great that he placed the savings from his salary in Indiana farmland. Operating these farms on a 50-50 basis with tenants, Willkie now knows as much about farming as he does about law.

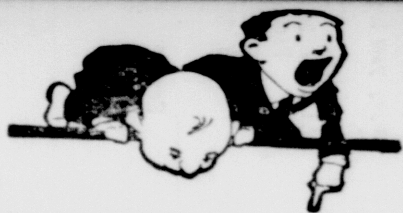

Indeed, like the Roman of old, Willkie might say "nothing human is foreign to me." But that thought would never occur to Willkie because he believes that when a man commences to compare himself to Cicero or Napoleon, people had better look out for him.

That Third Term Menace—a Symposium

ABOUT THE THIRD TERM

By Fred W. Davis

The question of a third term at the present time should be discussed from two standpoints. First, as a principle. Second, the particular man seeking a third term and his probable motives.

I will here deal with the first, or the principle involved. The tenure of office for our presidents was one of the knottiest questions before the constitutional convention. It was discussed time and again, agreed upon only to come up again. Once it was agreed to limit the president to one term of seven years. Later that plan was set aside and finally they settled upon a four year term with nothing said about succession. Consequently, those who favor a third term can truthfully say the founding fathers left the future generations to determine how long a president shall serve. In the legal right to a third term, fourth term or any number of terms there can be no question. But when the third term comes to the almost universal opinion of our greatest statesmen they are left out in the cold.

The third term question came up as soon as time rolled around to it. Leaders and very likely the people wanted Washington to stand for a third term. But he refused. Washington, however, made no pretense at setting a precedent when he refused to run again. While this is admitted, every historian knows that any effort by any president to perpetuate himself in office would have received his severest condemnation. Jefferson, as we know, set the precedent and so intended it. Jefferson was not a member of the constitutional convention, as he was representing us in France at the time. He told Washington, however, they made a mistake in not limiting the tenure by constitutional enactment. Jefferson was an active president with constant clashes with leaders and with the supreme court. Europe was being overrun and dominated by Napoleon Bonaparte, England being about the only country he could not pursue. Our commerce was not merely circumscribed by a neutrality act, but was under a complete embargo. There was much distress and great concern over foreign relations. In the midst of all of this, party leaders and those with their heads in the then rather poorly furnished public bins, urged him to seek a third term. The legislature of his home state of Virginia petitioned him to run. To all of it he said no. He said it was as much a patriotic duty to lay down public office as it was to take it up.

He made many able and patriotic observations concerning a third term. Among other things he expressed the hope that if any president ever ran for a third term the people would defeat him.

President Monroe who was practically unanimously elected and would have been so elected had it not been decided to let Washington carry that honor alone, would not stand for a third term. Like a patriot he retired at the end of his second term and went back to his people whom he subsequently served in the humble position as justice of the peace.

The effort of Wright Patman and other totalitarian Democrats to meet Jefferson's views of a third term by stating he opposed a third term for congressmen also is the thinnest of sophistry. The whole danger to our institution and social order is involved in the centralized power of the president. There is no such power in congress because of 96 different political units in the senate and 435 in the house. Besides this, the president has at all times the power of two-thirds of both branches of congress.

President Jackson was perhaps more positive and outspoken against a third term than was Jefferson. First, last, and all the time he preached against it. Even in his day, people could begin to see the power in the vast appointments of the president. Jackson said the influence for evil which lay in the perpetuation of a vast public machine, making its raids on the public treasury, outweighed any advantages which might accrue to experience. One historian has said Jackson could have had the nomination for a third term by merely "nodding his honored head". When he, as the outgoing president, appeared with Van Buren the incoming one, it was said the setting sun by far eclipsed the rising sun.

In 1875 a strong third term movement was started for General Grant. In order to head off this movement the following resolution: "Resolved: That, in the opinion of this House, the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents of the United States, in retiring from the presidential office after their second term, has become, by universal occurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions." Every democratic member, (158 in all then) voted for the resolution. Only 18 republicans voted against it.

THINKS IT A WISE PRECEDENT

By Lillian Mathilda Svenson

The very fact that such men as George Washington and Thomas Jefferson definitely expressed themselves as opposed to the idea of a third term for President, while Rutherford B. Hayes, who clearly showed that he would not compromise his principles for political advantage, put himself on record as opposed on principal to the idea of a SECOND term for president, indicates the wisdom of the precedent they set.

Of our thirty-three presidents, Franklin Delano Roosevelt is the thirteenth to be elected for a second term. Is it at all likely that popular vote will single him out to be the first to hold the office three terms? You and I, of course, are not in the least superstitious about the number thirteen! However, we both know that we have many patriotic fellow-citizens whose votes are as influential as ours, who are influenced by such ideas!

Of the thirteen presidents elected to a second term, Lincoln and McKinley died in office, both by assassination. Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge served less than eight years, since both were first elected vice-presidents, and succeeded to the office of chief executive upon the death of their successors. Both were popular, yet neither received the nomination for a third term, although many leading citizens had believed that, in view of the special peculiarities of the situation, a third term might have been permissible and possibly not regarded as a breaking of the long-established no-third-term tradition.

Grover Cleveland's occupation of the presidential chair was unique in that his two terms were not consecutive.

Calvin Coolidge, having had a curtailed first term (he served less than six years), and had been elected president for but one, might have pleaded that precedent did not apply in his case, and could quite conceivably have been re-elected. However, he said quite distinctly that he did "not choose to run for President in 1928".

I recall that, as a grammar grade school girl studying United States History, I listened to a discussion regarding the matter of the best length for the President's term of office. I heard it suggested then that it might be better to have a term of six years, with a second term barred by constitutional amendment.

No doubt there would be certain gains, as under our present system the practical length of the four years (Continued on last page.)

ASKS SOME QUESTIONS

If the writer's memory is dependable, there was a fierce feud broke out in the 1936 presidential campaign, between the house of Roosevelt and the house of Du Pont, culminating in marriage of a member of the Roosevelt clan to a member of the Du Pont clan on cessation of hostilities after the election.

In this show, Mr. Roosevelt played the role of the forgotten poor man's defender while Du Pont took the part of the wicked rich, a fine show.

Now, after the prolonged silence on the third term issue intended to keep interest at its highest to the very last, having finally succeeded in being forced to run again against his will; we may look for the usual sham battles with Tammany and with Wall Street.

By a coincidence, since beginning this letter, the radio announces Mr. Ickes' opening gun by accusing Mr. Willkie of being contaminated with Tammanyism.

This suggests a few questions pertaining to Tammany.

What is Tammany? Where is it located and what are its activities? It is the most notorious corrupt political organization of America. It was formerly localized in New York City before it was nationalized under the present administration. Its activities consist in control of votes by unscrupulous use of public funds and patronage. All dissenters are ineligible for participation in the spoils.

Have the honest objectors of the "New Deal" received the same consideration that was granted to its exponents?

Does anyone know the disbursements of the five billion dollars granted by Congress as pocket change in the opening of the 1936 campaign, and the cost on hand from that fund?

We cannot avoid the reflection that this sum would have provided several battleships and a large swarm of planes.

As to Wall Street: who has bought all the New Deal bonds?

What was the mortgage on the people held by Wall Street at the beginning of this administration?

Are the people, living and unborn, less heavily mortgaged to Wall Street now than they were seven years ago?

"The most unkindest" blow landed by Mr. Roosevelt's broadcaster was the charge that Willkie endorsed the New Deal.

If that is true, Willkie is not "Our Hope". But it is not true.

Respectfully,

E. G. FRANCIS.

is apt to be virtually shortened considerably by the dissipation of the not inconsiderable energy sometimes expended by the President and his party leaders in "playing politics" with one eye open and one ear cocked toward the doorway leading to reelection. On the other hand, there is little doubt that Congressmen and other prominent men of the opposing party give less cooperation than they MIGHT, BECAUSE OF A DETERMINATION TO PREVENT RE-ELECTION.

Whatever may be the truth about the wisdom of a single six-year term as opposed to a four-or-eight-year possible term for our elected presidents, there can be little doubt that there would be distinct advantages in having it made clearly understood (if necessary by a constitutional amendment) that a more than eight-year term would be an impossibility, except through military dictatorship.

One reason advising the understanding that his term would necessarily be LIMITED AND NOT TOO LONG, IS THAT OUR CONSTITUTION grants our President far too much power for one man to hold indefinitely, in a supposedly democratic country.

I recall reading some years ago an article (I believe the writer was the United States Consul to Denmark and writing about Norway) in which the writer quoted King Haakon to this effect: "Your President is a king for eight years, while I am a very constitutional President for life." This suggests the thought that eight years should be quite long enough for the best of men to hold so nearly dictatorial powers in a constitutional democracy!

It has been suggested that if eight years is not long enough for a President to "finish his program", he should be re-elected and again re-elected until he has had ample time. This suggestion impresses one as a self-evident fallacy on at least two points.

First, if it is important that a certain national "program" be completed, is it possible that, after eight years in the White House, any President can have still kept a program important to national welfare so secret that no other statesman knows enough about it to carry it on? Second, so long as the former president remains alive, I see no reason why the nation should not have the benefit of his garnered wisdom and experience. It appears very unlikely that a deserving man, who has held the office of President for eight years, shall have made such enemies of all leading statesmen that no patriotic successor can be found to carry on a needed "program".

We are indeed in a bad way if our supposed democracy is ENTIRELY DEPENDENT UPON ANY ONE LEADER to carry on a program suited to our national needs, and this in a world in which "accidents will happen" not only "in the best-regulated families", but in the best-governed nations as well.

Such arguments, it would seem will apply also to the Lincolnian suggestion regarding "swapping horses in the middle of the stream". If those who are bringing forward that argument now, are thinking of the state of war in the world, how can they be sure we are anywhere near the middle of that stream? Surely we need no dictatorship so long as we are neutral. One strong argument for our continued neutrality is avoiding of that trend toward dictatorship which long wars always bring in their wake.

Surely, we shall not be accused of casting any aspersions upon the capabilities (the genius, if you will!) of the man in the White House today, if we say that we doubt if there ever lived a man (if we except that "Son of Man" whom opponents crucified) who was so indispensable that his work would not be carried on after he stepped aside, if that work were such as the world, nation, or community recognized a need for.

In this connection, it might be recalled that more than one "dark horse", after election, has made a satisfactory president; and that the abilities of Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge would probably not have been recognized in the Presidential capacity but for the fact that the hand of Death removed their predecessors. It has not been usual for American voters to elect a former vice-president to the Presidency, under existing laws.

THINKS ROOSEVELT KNOWS GOOD POLITICS.

Gentlemen:

You have consistently and rightly advocated the nomination of John N. Garner for President. He is a real man and had he been nominated I would have voted for him. Instead of wanting a real man the convention nominated Mr. Roosevelt, who has played fast and loose with business in this country, has vastly increased our debt and has not decreased unemployment and who, in his desire to force his ideologies upon us, has totally neglected for seven years to warn the country that it must re-arm as rapidly as the Dictator nations have re-armed. Today we find ourselves with the fighting strength of a jelly fish and the fault lies with Mr. Roosevelt alone.

You name your paper "States Rights" and I like to believe and so do you that in each state we have sufficient desire and sufficient brain power and a sufficient number of worthwhile men so that each state can from within regulate the electric light and power industry according to the needs of each state. There is no doubt but that the electric industry needs regulation and for that matter supervision over all business is to some extent necessary, but we do not need any agency or man such as Mr. Roosevelt from without the State to come into your state or mine and endeavor to do any regulating because when he does so, he gives the lie to your ability or our ability to do our own regulating, which we can do if we choose, and if we in each state don't regulate by the use of our own power, then we certainly deserve to be soaked.

Mr. Roosevelt has attacked the electrical industry because it is good politics, and if for seven years he has neglected the defenses of this nation, it is a sure thing that his efforts in other directions are of no value to our people.

You may publish this letter if you wish.

Very truly yours,
ORRIN S. GOOD.

WAS HE RIGHT THEN OR NOW?

By George Peck

The things men say sometimes rise to embarrass them. On March 2, 1930, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State, over the radio, delivered one of the ablest speeches ever made in defense of State's Rights and Free Private Enterprise. In this address, he decried the encroachment of the National Government into the affairs rightfully belonging to the individual States and scoffed at the idea that there were any "Master Minds" in this country or ever would be. Here is what he said in part:

"The doctrine of regulation and legislation by 'master minds', in whose judgment and will, all the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce, has been too glaringly apparent at Washington during these last ten years. Were it possible to find 'master minds' so unselfish; so willing to decide unhesitatingly against their own personal interests or private prejudices; men almost god-like in their ability to hold the scales of justice with an even hand—such a government might be to the interests of the country, but there are NONE SUCH ON OUR POLITICAL HORIZON. AND WE CANNOT EXPECT A COMPLETE REVERSAL OF ALL THE TEACHINGS OF HISTORY.

"Now to bring about GOVERNMENT BY OLIGARCHY MASQUE-

ADING AS DEMOCRACY, it is fundamentally essential that practically all authority and control be CENTRALIZED IN OUR NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. The individual sovereignty of our States must first be destroyed, except in mere minor matters of legislation. WE ARE SAFE from the danger of any such departure from the principles on which this country was founded just SO LONG AS THE INDIVIDUAL HOME RULE OF THE STATES IS SCRUPULOUSLY PRESERVED AND FOUGHT FOR WHENEVER THEY SEEM IN DANGER.

"Thus it will be seen that this HOME RULE is a most important thing—THE MOST VITAL THING—if we are to continue along the course on which we have so far progressed with such unprecedented success.

"But what are THE UNDERLYING PRINCIPLES on which this government is founded? First and foremost, the new thought that every citizen was entitled to live his own life in his own way so long as his conduct did not injure any of his fellow-men. This was to be a new Land of Promise where a man could worship God in the way he saw fit; WHERE HE COULD RISE BY INDUSTRY, BY THRIFT, BY INTELLIGENCE TO THE HIGHEST PLACES IN THE COMMON-WEALTH, secure from tyranny, secure from injustice—a free agent—the maker or destroyer of his own destiny."

Since Mr. Roosevelt became President in 1932, many of his actions and public utterances have been diametrically opposed to what he said in 1930. Every true American must decide by his own conscience and by his own intellect as to whether Mr. Roosevelt was right in 1930 or is right now.

MISS STELLA FINGER WEDS MARTIN H. NEY

In a ceremony in Holy Cross Catholic Church, on Thursday, September 26, 1940, at 8 o'clock in the morning, Miss Stella Finger, daughter of Mr. L. J. Finger and the late Mrs. Finger, became the bride of Mr. Martin H. Ney, son of Mrs. Theresa Ney and the late Joe J. Ney. Reverend Eugene Zuber, pastor, officiated and read the Nuptial Mass which followed.

The maid of honor was Miss Verne Finger, sister of the bride, who wore a rum brown crepe street dress, with accessories of black. Fastened to her bag was a bouquet of talisman roses. Little Miss Mary Agnes Ney, niece of the bridegroom, carried the rings in her bouquet. With her frock of light blue velvet she wore a matching poke bonnet faced with pink shirring.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her street dress of soldier blue crepe with long full sleeves and flared skirt. Her gloves and shoes were of black suede, as was the arm bag to which was fastened a bouquet of white carnations. Her hat of black felt was adorned with a pom-pom of feathers to match the dress.

At the sanctuary the bride was met by the bridegroom and her cousin, Edward Finger, who served as best man. Their boutonnières were white carnations.

Wedding selections on the pipe organ preceded the entrance of the bride, when the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" was played for the processional. The choir, of which both bride and bridegroom are members, sang the Mass in Honor of St. David by Rees, and at the offertory rendered Wiegand's "Ave Maria". During the recessional Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played.

Later in the morning the bride's father was host at a breakfast served at the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio. The guests were Clemens Finger, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ney, and the bridal party.

After a wedding trip through the Rio Grande Valley as far as Brownsville, Mr. and Mrs. Ney will be at home in D'Hanis, where he is engaged in the ranching business. Their marriage linked two of Medina County's oldest pioneer families.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED

Miss Gladys Rieber entertained at her home Saturday afternoon with a bridge party honoring Miss Melvera Rothe, bride-elect. Bouquets of summer flowers were featured as decorations. After several games the hostess presented the honoree with a lovely gift as well as high score prize. Mrs. Louis Carle Jr. received low score, and Mrs. Arthur Nester cut high. Delicious ice cream and cake were served to the following: Mesdames Charles Tondre, James Finger, Arthur Nester, Louis Lutz Carle Jr., Robert Zuberbuehler, Herman Fohn, and Ervin Nester, and Misses Cornelia Koch, Billy Wyatt, Lillian Fohn, Sarah Koch, Marybelle Carle, Ethel Rothe, and the honoree, Miss Melvera Rothe.

SHOWER-TEA FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Melvera Rothe, a bride-elect of September 30, was complimented with a prettily appointed shower during the tea hours of Wednesday, September 25, at the home of Mrs. A. J. Finger.

At the entrance to the living room Mrs. Finger in an afternoon gown of fuchsia chiffon with a shoulder corsage of white feverfew, headed the receiving line. The honoree wore a floor-length gown of rose satin with velvet bows, silver sandals, and a corsage of feverfew. With her was her mother, Mrs. Oscar Rothe, in black moire with pink queen's crown. Mrs. Louis Carle Jr., mother of the bridegroom-to-be, was in rose silk net, gold bolero, with a corsage of yellow dahlias and snapdragons.

Miss Mary Belle Carle in peach taffeta presided over the bride's book. Mrs. Frank Rucker in ice-blue satin, and Mrs. W. A. Nehr in American beauty moire, ushered the guests into the gift rooms. Alternating in serving cake were Mrs. Charles Tondre, who wore a moire gown of deep rose, and Miss Cornelia Koch, who was in black net. Miss Billy Wyatt's dress was of powder blue net, and she alternated in pouring tea with Miss Gladys Rieber, who wore pink net. The hostesses wore corsages of feverfew, except Miss Koch, who used pink queen's crown. Additional hostesses were Mrs. Will Grimsinger, Mrs. H. C. Rothe, Mrs. Charles Finger, Mrs. Joe Mueller, and Mrs. O. J. Reinhart, all of whom wore street dresses with harmonizing corsages.

On the lace-covered table the centerpiece of white asters was flanked by green candles in crystal candelabra. Cake, mints, and iced tea were served to about 125 guests.

CARLE-ROTHE WEDDING

Holy Cross Church was the scene of a lovely wedding at 8:30 A. M. on Monday, September 30, 1940, when Miss Melvera Rothe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rothe, was married to Mr. Lawrence Joseph Carle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carle Jr., all of D'Hanis, with Reverend Eugene Zuber officiating and reading the Nuptial Mass.

A variety of flowers in white and ones of rose decorated the main altar and the sanctuary, and ferns bordered the aisle.

For the processional, the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" was used, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was the recessional. The choir, of whom the bride is a member, sang "Wilken's Mass in Honor of St. Anthony," and "Ave Maria" by Wiegand.

Miss Lavelle Koch, cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Miss Mary Belle Carle, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. They wore identical floor-length dresses of pink moire made in princess style with self-covered buttons down the back, short puffed sleeves, and shirred bodices. Their hats were pink poke bonnets, and they carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations and asters.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. W. A. Nehr. She was pretty in a white satin gown made along princess lines with heart-shaped neckline, and extending into a long train. The sleeves were puffed at the shoulder and fitted closely from elbow to wrist. Her knee-length veil fell in tiers from a cap which formed a halo around the face. Her only ornament was a gold cross and chain. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

The groomsmen were Oliver Reinhart Jr., cousin of the bride, and John Tondre, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Carle left for a wedding trip to Louisiana. She was wearing a rum brown fur-trimmed dress with black accessories.

EVIDENCE IN SONG

The lyre of hope has never played a dirge;
The lilting notes meander like the waves
Of mountain lakes whose graceful billows surge
In cadence with the crest that each engraves;

The lyre re-echoes in each ivory shell.
In rocks and caves along the wooded shore.

I listen for the words, a madrigal,
Chanting clear tones that answer evermore.

There is no mournful music in these songs.

No measured tolling by the sexton's hands,
Out to the far-flung stars where hope belongs,

Shall ring the evidence the heart demands.

Hope knows no darkened turf of lonesome clay,
The lyre plays on, a joyous roundelay.

MONDAY

White clothes are hanging in sunshine
And wind, softly flying.

Kerchiefs and frocks,
Stockings and socks,
With shirts in flocks

In serried ranks, on backyard line,
Are sweetly drying.

I look at these and think of Man,
In all his sinning.

Clean clothes we call
The garments all.
But, of Man's fall,

Can he, resurgent, be clean again
Like the beginning?

NEWS

DILLEY DEFEATS D'HANIS 18-12

The Dilley High School Wolves defeated the D'Hanis Cowboys in a non-conference game 18-12, last Friday afternoon at Dilley. Both teams were fairly well matched according to weight. The Wolves used both a balanced line and backfield, combining a passing attack with a deceptive ground game. The Cowboys let down their pass defense on several occasions and came up too slow to meet sweeping end plays. The Wolves made more first downs than D'Hanis. Outstanding for D'Hanis were the fine offensive blocking of Jimmie Wolff and the running of Jimmie Zinsmeyer; while Buddy Biry and Laurence Huser bolstered the defense.

The Cowboys journey to Camp Wood on October 4th for a conference game. D'Hanis is tied with several other teams in the district for first place, having played one conference game and won one.

D'Hanis' starting lineup was:

L. E. Laurence Huser
C. Victor Boog
R. E. Capt. Robert Love
Q. B. Jimmie Wolff
H. B. Jimmie Zinsmeyer
F. B. Buddy Biry

The Pep Squad attended the Dilley game, as did several of the teachers and a number of other D'Hanis fans. After the game the Pep Squad enjoyed the hospitality of Supt. and Mrs. V. D. Currin in their home at Dilley.

THE THIRD TERM.

term, Theodore Roosevelt sought a third term. But Jefferson's wish prevailed and Roosevelt was defeated. Is it in the blood or a mere coincidence that only Roosevelts have sought a third term? But, in all fairness to this first Roosevelt, he had served but one elective term and his third term effort was made after he had severed himself from the vast political machine which is the president's.

In 1928, when leaders got fearful President Coolidge would permit himself to be re-nominated, the U. S. Senate dug up the old House Resolution of 1875 against Grant and passed it without changing a word. Bear in mind Coolidge was serving his first elective term which, when ended, would give him a total of but five and one-half years as president. Many senators who were ready to condemn Coolidge if he would stand for more than his 5½ years as president were active in supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third elective term. Prominent among them was Senator Barkley, who was per-

FORECAST

Transcendent love of fellow men
Will roll like endless waves of time,
When all are blessed with inner light

That will burst into brotherhood.

manent chairman of the Chicago farce and Senator Wagner, chairman of the platform committee. It must take the gall of the proverbial government mule for such men to face their intelligent fellowmen.

Some writers have thrown the mantle of charity over Senators Barkley, Wagner and others, by assuming they have honestly changed their minds since 1928. In my opinion, they have done nothing of the kind. They have been beneficiaries of and participants in the wild orgy of looting the treasury—and they like it. If a republican were in power handing out most of the favors to fellow republicans they would vote again the same resolution and every intelligent open-minded man in the U. S. knows they would.

Just why should we concern ourselves as to a third or fourth term for our presidents? The answer is, for the same reason that Jefferson, Jackson, et al gave it. It is "to avoid the perpetuation of the executive and check the ambition to rule as a monarch. The office of president is an office of unusual power. In the executive branch all the power is concentrated in one man. The only checks are elections and impeachments. Impeachment is practically out of the question, if for no other reason, it takes two-thirds of both houses and an impeachment would be considered political suicide for the party responsible for the election. If an ambitious president wishes to remain in office he practically has the power through patronage to force his party to nominate him whether they really wish to or not. He will use the most dangerous of all devices, viz: loosing the purse strings so people can enjoy the privilege of a grab into the treasury. This is the one weapon against which a people are practically powerless. A good example is found in Senator Barkley and Harry Hopkins. According to press reports, a senate investigating committee condemned Hopkins spending money improperly in Kentucky in order to re-elect Barkley to the Senate. Barkley won, retained his place as senate leader, and Hopkins was promoted to be Secretary of Commerce. So Hopkins goes up to Chicago as the official spokesman of the President and Barkley is made permanent chairman. Of course the President approved Hopkins' violation of the corrupt practice act and Barkley's acceptance of such illegal help.

If we set a limit by practice, since it is not set by law, on the tenure of our Presidents we have put a deadline on their ambition and raiding. If we defeat Roosevelt no party will dare try it again. If we elect him there will likely never be an end to the efforts to purchase continuous support until our economic machinery is collapsed. Then a totalitarian government is certain to follow. Totalitarian governments are built upon economic chaos.

Believe it or not our doom will be determined by how we treat the question of a third term. If we break the third term tradition we will have practically established a hereditary monarchy. Roosevelt could have easily forced the nomination of one of his sons at Chicago as he did his own renomination. If he is reelected and is getting weary he may do this very thing in 1944. The American people had better decide we have more than one man capable of being President and more than one family capable of raising them.

CASTROVILLE WINS TWO IN ROW

Castroville, Texas, Sept. 27.—The practically sublimed Castroville Public School Comets stuck another star to their helmets by ripping out a 12-6 defeat over Yancey High School Tigers, trounced up as the strongest team of the district due to their squad that returned this year.

The main two features of the game were: the sixty yards, punting by Horace Geiger, a Castroville with a sore leg, and the terrific tackling defense of the home team led by R. Q. Stinson and Lee "Galento" Suehs.

Yancey made but two first downs against the Castrovillian air-tight defense. Their touchdown came from a 15 yard run by Dick McAnelly, a blocked punt by Yancey. Noble Ahl made the first tally for Castroville from a perfectly executed kick pass from Kenneth Hans, the quarterback case. The second touchdown for Castroville came in the third stanza of the game from a long pass from Horace Geiger to Captain Arthur Weiblen.

Castroville's next game will be at Yancey Friday (Oct. 4, 1940). This will be their second and deciding game toward district honors.
